

GED . . . Look At Me Now!

“When I was laid off in 2008 I pretty much had to start over. I wasn’t ready to retire and wanted to keep active and keep working. But I hadn’t been in school since I was 15 and every place I applied for work wanted a high school diploma. I wasn’t sure where to turn.”

“Adult Basic Ed really helped. I took night classes in Hinckley and some classes in Pine City, whatever I could fit in with my schedule. They provided me with the books and the help I needed to earn my GED diploma.”

“Both my daughter and granddaughter have college degrees, and I had always promised my dad that I would graduate from high school. He never got to see me graduate, but I kept my promise.”

“My advice for someone who is thinking about getting their GED diploma? Go for it! If you don’t get your diploma you won’t be able to get a decent job.”

A GED diploma is your stepping-stone toward college, a better career, and family-sustaining wages.

After December 2013 there will be a new GED test – it will be more difficult, more costly, and computer-based. That may sound like a long way off, but its only months from now. Getting your GED diploma is one of the best things you can do for your future, and there’s even more good reason to do it now.
